

Consent for Release of Student Financial Aid Information

The Family Educational Rights and Privacy Act (FERPA) of 1974 is a federal law designed to protect the privacy of the parts of your educational record that are not considered directory information. Educational records include financial aid information which is considered confidential and will not be released without written consent from you, the student (except to the extent that FERPA authorizes disclosure without consent). For this reason, it is necessary for us to obtain permission from you in order to release financial aid information to anyone but you, the student. If you want to allow members of your family, your employer, or anyone else access to your financial aid information, you must list them below.
